NATIONAL
Life Insurance Co
OF THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Chartered by Special Act of Congress,
Approved July [illegible], 1868.
Cash Capital, $1,000,000,
PAID IN FULL.
BRANCH OFFICE:
FIRST NATIONAL BANK BUILDING
PHILADELPHIA,
Where the general business of the Company is transacted, and to which all general correspondence should be addressed.

OFFICERS:
CLARENCE H. CLARK, President.
JAY COOKE, Chairman Finance and Executive Committee.
HENRY D. COOKE, Vice President.
EMERSON W. PEET, Secretary and Actuary.

This Company, National in its character, offers by reason of its Large Capital, Low Rates of Premium and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public.
The rates of premium being largely reduced, are made as favorable as those of the best Mutual Companies, and avoid all the complications and uncertainties of Notes, Dividends, and the misunderstandings which the latter are so apt to cause the Policy-Holders.
Several new and attractive tables are now presented which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as the INCOME-PRODUCING POLICY & RETURN PREMIUM POLICY. In the former, the policy holder not only secures a life insurance payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a few years, an annual income equal to ten per cent of the par of his policy. In the latter the Company agrees to return to the insured the total amount of money he has paid in, in addition to the amount of his policy.
The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives or increasing the amount of insurance they already have, is called to the special advantages offered by the National Life Insurance Company.
Circulars, Pamphlets and full particulars given on application to the Branch Office of the Company, or to

JOHN H. LYNDE, — PROPRIETOR.

FRIDAY, APRIL 2, 1869.

[illegible] took Pioneer says that one of [illegible] for the incorporation of the [illegible] Aroostook railroad told its editor [illegible] anything could be done to [illegible] to Aroostook, the European [illegible] pleted, which would not be [illegible] than four years; and that two years [illegible] would be required to build a [illegible] Houlton."

[illegible] the gentleman who gave this [illegible] perpetrating a heavy joke or the [illegible] of the Pioneer misunderstood [illegible] who knows anything about [illegible] lieves that the completion of [illegible] E. & N. A. Railway will be postponed [illegible] two years, and if the work is continued [illegible] in the past, trains will be [illegible] through in much less time than [illegible] the editor of the Pioneer ought to know [illegible] and still further, that when the [illegible] completed, it will be within about [illegible] of Houlton at its nearest point, if [illegible] is run as now contemplated, [illegible]. This road being built so [illegible] the editor of the Pioneer believes [illegible] will take two years more to build [illegible] to Houlton, on its supposition [illegible] nearest point will be chosen? No [illegible] time stated and still more [illegible] in constructing these roads. But [illegible] judge the chances by what [illegible] been done. If the present [illegible] example of what may be done [illegible] the people of Houlton [illegible] anxious for that railroad, [illegible] waiting six years, Bangor [illegible] may be connected in much less [illegible]. All that seems now required [illegible] toward this object is the indorse[illegible] people. If Aroostook will [illegible] this plan, let us know it, and we [illegible] the object can be accom[illegible]

The [illegible] ondent of the Advertiser thinks the [illegible] which the Senate Indian Committee [illegible] in the direction advised by Messrs. [illegible] Welsh, Price and others, is [illegible] ted by the amendment which Mr. [illegible] chairman, has drawn up and will [illegible] in the appropriation bill. It [illegible] authorizes the President to appoint [illegible] of not more than ten Commissioners [illegible] without pecuniary compensation [illegible] under his direction, to supervise [illegible] of the disbursement of any part [illegible] appropriations made by the act, including [illegible] contracts contemplated thereby [illegible] tion of buildings, for [illegible] uses and mills, the improvement [illegible], the removal of Indians, the [illegible] schools, and the employment [illegible] farmers, mechanics, interpreters [illegible] authorized by law, and may [illegible] such employees and employ [illegible] discretion. And the said board [illegible] sioners shall have authority, [illegible] President's approval, to establish [illegible] ssary rules and regulations [illegible] and intercourse with Indian[illegible] may, when present at any Indian [illegible] superintendency, suspend such [illegible] superintendent, for malfeasance [illegible] ance in office, as well as for palpable [illegible] petency, or such immorality as [illegible] such position; and from and [illegible] sion, such suspended officer shall [illegible] until the President other[illegible]. The President is authorized to [illegible] country occupied by the Indian [illegible] districts, to assign two or more [illegible] commissioners to service in any [illegible] districts respectively, and the [illegible] so assigned shall in all [illegible] to said district have all the [illegible] authority of the full board, and [illegible] appropriated to pay the necessary [illegible] of said commission.

Ac[illegible] subsequent developments, Andy [illegible] did well a few hours before the [illegible] of General Grant. Several [illegible] spent in signing the pardons of [illegible] criminals. But the grand haul of all [illegible] exposed until Mr. John A. Bingham [illegible] offered a resolution in the House, which was adopted, reciting that on the 3d [illegible] 1869, a few hours before the [illegible] of the late Administration, bonds [illegible] unt of $2,400,000, were by order [illegible] President Johnson prepared for issue, and [illegible],000 of them were actually issued [illegible] Central Pacific Railroad of California [illegible] ount of the alleged construction [illegible] in sections of that railroad; [illegible] lleged in certain proofs on file in [illegible] Treasury Department, that the lines [illegible] which the bonds were issued were [illegible] wrongfully, and illegally approv[illegible] the late Secretary of the Interior, and that the value of work done did not [illegible],000 per mile, though certified [illegible] worth $20,000, and that if such [illegible] were true, the Government is liable [illegible] red and defrauded, unless the bonds [illegible] ed were recovered and cancelled, [illegible] late action taken to protect the [illegible] of the United States, and instruc[illegible] Committee on the Pacific Railro[illegible] igate immediately the circumsta[illegible] ding the issue of United States [illegible] the Central Pacific Railroad, and to [illegible] such action as it may deem [illegible]. Yet we suppose it will be [illegible] Johnson was an uncorrupt [illegible] and [illegible]

CUBA. [illegible] New York Herald declares that [illegible] decided policy should be [illegible] regard to Cuba and American in[illegible] there. As long as Cuba belongs [illegible] we shall always be subject to insult [illegible]. The shortest and best way to [illegible] and forever all difficulty relative [illegible] land is to send a powerful fleet out there at once and to recognize the independence of the Cubans."

Daily [illegible] seem to point to this end at [illegible] distance. The "war" in Cuba [illegible] to a fight for extermination, and [illegible] can scarcely be told. The [illegible] are said to entertain the most [illegible] hatred of Spaniards, who, for the most [illegible] shopkeepers, and do not regard the Island as their permanent home. A beautiful [illegible], daughter of untold wealth, moving in the most aristocratic circles, and [illegible] the brilliancy of whose eyes might [illegible] that inevitable line of blue which [illegible] the blood of Africa—no disgrace in [illegible]—remarked to a correspondent [illegible] may have the blood of the negro in my veins; but, thank God, not one drop Spanish!" And this is not unusual. The great mass of Cubans would vastly prefer kinship to the most degraded insect eater of Ethiopia to that of a Peninsular. What a civil war between such foes, with the innate cruelty of their common Moorish origin must be, can be conceived, without the details. The civilized nations may be moved to interfere before many months, and no move can be made without aiding Cuban independence of Spanish domination.

The public debt statement shows a decrease of two and a half millions last month.

The report of the Conference Committee on the tenure of office bill Wednesday was accepted in the House of Representatives—106 to 67. There were 18 Republican Representatives who voted in the negative, viz: Messrs. Benton of New Hampshire, Poland, Willard and Smith of Vermont, Hoar of Massachusetts, Davis of New York, Orth and Julian of Indiana, Whittemore of S. C., Beatty of Ohio, Ferry of Michigan, Rogers of Arkansas, Wilkinson of Minnesota, Boyd of Missouri, Clarke of Kansas, Dewease of North Carolina, Hawkins of Tennessee, and Loughridge of Iowa. In the Senate Mr. Sprague was the only Republican who voted in the negative, but Messrs. Fessenden, Cole, Howe, McDonald, Robertson, Ross, Sherman, and Warner were present and declined to vote, while Messrs. Morton, Thayer and Stewart were absent.

Under this act the President's power of removal or suspension is not in any way dependent on charges or reasons, but may be exercised at his own discretion; no removal can be made during a session of the Senate except by the consent of that body given in confirming the successor; the President may suspend at pleasure during a vacation, and appoint successors who shall receive all the pay and emoluments of the offices to which they are appointed; nominations in case of suspension must be made within thirty days after the re-assembling of the Senate, if during this session the President and the Senate fail to agree on the same one, the suspended officer goes back at the end of the session. This is all there is of the [illegible] now stands, and it applies to every [illegible] except judges of the U. S. Courts. The repealers think that there is not much of the old law left, while the anti-repealers like the [illegible] better than the act passed by the Senate last week.

Perley telegraphs the Journal Wednesday that several Senators displayed opposition that morning to the House resolution calling for an adjournment of Congress on Tuesday, the 10th of April. Mr. Sumner was decidedly opposed to adjournment, and several other prominent Senators think that Congress should not adjourn so early, or at least that the status of Georgia and several other questions should be settled first—Messrs. Anthony, Conkling and others are in favor of adjourning on the 10th [illegible], but it is probable that a compromise will be made and the session prolonged a week or two after that date. The amendment proposed by Mr. Hamlin to strike out 10 and insert April 16 seemed to be favorably received.

By a typographical error we were made to say in the leading article yesterday that the ill-success of the Democracy had been "owing to an unwillingness to adopt any doubtful means," which is exactly contrary to the intent of the article and to the facts.

Rumors of Cabinet changes are again rife in Washington. It is said that Hamilton Fish will soon resign and go to England as Minister [illegible] country. It is also stated that a [illegible] reorganization of the Cabinet will soon take place, and that at least two or three of the present members will be asked to [illegible].

The [illegible] malice of the Ku-Klux Klan in Greenville, Ala., where martial law ought [illegible] ago to have been proclaimed, yesterday culminated in a dastardly attempt to murder [illegible] Gardner, Judge of Probate of Butler county. He was shot [illegible] while sitting near an open window. The wound is thought to be fatal. The [illegible] escaped.

Mr. McCormick, delegate to Congress from Arizona, will in a few days introduce a bill in Congress to encourage the construction of artesian wells upon the public lands in the territory. By such wells it is [illegible] that hundreds of thousands of acres of land may be made [illegible] for agricultural [illegible].

SENATOR FESSENDEN, [illegible] the redistribution of the national currency was under consideration, endeavored to have the rate of interest which the National Banks may legally charge fixed at seven and a half per cent, in those States where the legal rate of interest is less, frankly admitting that under the existing usury laws of Maine much of her capital flows to Massachusetts. But the Senate thought that Maine should repeal her laws regulating the sale of money if they are prejudicial to the interests of her citizens, and declined to accept the amendment.—[Press.

A STARTLING DECLARATION. Perley telegraphs to the Boston Journal as follows: A woman clerk has written a letter from Washington for publication, which has created a great stir at the Treasury Department because of the truths which it plainly states. The writer deliberately charges that hundreds of women are employed as clerks who are not needed, and that they are [illegible] entirely unfit for the positions they fill. She also indicates that some of the women are favorites of members of Congress who keep them, as well as the other useless and superfluous female clerks, in office at the expense of the government. In conclusion she says: "Every woman employed should be subject to the same examination as men, and personal beauty or laxity of morals ought not to be a recommendation as is too often the case. The Examining Board should be women, and in order to prevent corruption in all bureaus where women are employed, there should be a female Auditor."

THE DANGERS OF THE OCEAN. Additional evidence concerning the murders on board the ship James Foster, Jr., was taken on Monday. One of the witnesses testified that many of the passengers refusing to work were kicked and beaten by the carpenter and mate, a brother of the captain. The doctor was as great a tyrant as the others. Fire was allowed but once a day on board ship. The provisions given out on Saturday lasted until Thursday. Six passengers and nine of the crew died on the voyage, and all complained of the treatment they had received. Once, when he was sick, he went to the carpenter and asked him for water for two; that brute struck and cut him in the mouth, knocked him down and then kicked him. Another passenger testified that the passengers had to cook their oatmeal with sea water, and frequently the carpenter put out the fire in the galley at which they cooked their food; once the witness was lying sick in the bunk, when the doctor came and pulled him out by the feet; he then brought the carpenter, and they put a rope on the foot of his companion and dragged him also out on the deck in that way. Another witness testified that the doctor sometimes visited the hospital, but was always drunk; the captain would not have his clothes washed in the water drank by the passengers, being too [illegible]; at another time he nailed up the windows of the ship's hospital to prevent the crew from affording any assistance to the wretched inmates.

Ogden, which it is said will be established by law as the point of union between the Central and Union Pacific Railroads, is a town lying some 50 miles directly north of Salt Lake City. The Central Pacific road desired this place for terminus, but the Union Pacific desired to carry its road 80 miles farther West to Monument Point. During the coming summer the Mormons propose to build a branch road from Salt Lake City to Ogden.

The cotton operatives of Great Britain are placing themselves in a striking position, in the hope of getting out of a starving one.

In Hungary the Deak party has triumphed at the elections, which were bitterly contested, and attended with a large loss of life, and much injury to limbs, more than an hundred persons having been killed or wounded.

Political and Personal.

Mr. Grinnell formally received possession of the New York Custom House on Wednesday, from the hands of Collector Smythe. He stated to the Deputies that he would make no changes.

In the executive session of the Senate Wednesday, the nomination of Gen. Longstreet to be Surveyor of the port of New Orleans was taken up, but no definite action was taken. Gov. Brownlow made a fierce and bitter attack on the General, and hoped the nomination would be rejected.

Gen. Robert Anderson, of Fort Sumter fame, now on half pay, is going to Europe because he can live there cheaper.

The leading officers of all the associations and societies working for the Freedmen have memorialized Major Gen. Howard, earnestly requesting him, if possible, to withdraw his resignation as Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau, and to continue to direct the work to the end of the Bureau.

In response to the [illegible] of a delegation of Pennsylvanians, who called on Sec'y Borie the other day, that gentleman is reported by the Baltimore Sun to have said that he never sought the position he now occupies, but that he supposed it was given him because of a personal liking of the President for him. He intimated too that he would not retain the office very long, as his health was feeble. The impression left by Mr. Borie's remarks was that he would retire at a very early day.

Rev. Dr. Bacon, of New Haven, has written an able letter in favor of the ratification of the fifteenth amendment.

Here is the story Mr. Creswell tells about his appointment: "I had a conversation with General Grant a few days before the 4th of March. I called to see him at the army headquarters, not on any particular business, but purely as a matter of courtesy. General Grant was very pleasant, but he showed me no particular marked attention. As I was about to leave, he called me aside and said: 'Mr. Creswell, let me see what are your initials—J. N. [illegible]' 'No,' said I, 'John Andrew Jackson Creswell.' General Grant took a pencil from his pocket and wrote the name in full on a scrap of paper. I was very curious to know what the General meant, but I did not ask him. I thought it very strange that he should be so [illegible] about my name, and when I went home I told my wife of it. 'Why,' said she, 'he is going to give you a Cabinet appointment.' I merely laughed at her reply, which I regarded as a little [illegible]. But she persisted that General Grant meant simply that and nothing more. March 5th came, and I was standing in the office of the Ebbitt House, in the city. About one o'clock one of my friends struck me on the shoulder and said: 'Creswell, you have been nominated to be Postmaster General.' This was the first intimation I had of the President's intention, and I was indeed very much surprised."

HOUSE.

Mr. Davis introduced a bill to define vacancies in office, and to provide for filling the same, and to regulate resignations of office, which was referred to the Judiciary committee.

Mr. Sawyer, from the committee on commerce, reported river and harbor appropriation bill. Referred to the committee on appropriations.

The House then resumed the consideration of the bill to provide for the organization of a provisional government for Mississippi.

Messrs. Maynard, Whittemore also advocated the bill.

Mr Butler moved the previous question, and having the floor to close the debate, yielded part of his time to Stevenson who advocated the bill.

Mr Butler resumed the floor and proceeded to criticise the course of his colleague (Dawes) in opposing the bill, the effect of that course being, he said, to keep the loyal people of Mississippi under rebel rule.

Mr Dawes asked his colleague to yield for a moment.

Mr. Butler—No, Sir, I cannot open my mouth that same gentleman does not cram down my throat.

Mr Dawes—That is the last place that I desire to get. I desire to ask my colleague—

Mr Butler, emphatically—I don't yield.

Mr Dawes—I want simply the ordinary courtesy. I do not complain of my colleague's putting any construction he pleases upon the effect of my remarks. I simply want him to state, yea or nay, if he means to state to the House that I desire being—

Mr Butler—I am not to be categorically catechised. I don't know what my friend desires, but I know what the effect of his acts is, and I put the legal intendment on his acts. Now if I can be freed from my colleague, I desire to answer the question of his ally from Wisconsin (Eldridge).

Mr Eldridge—I rise to a question of order. The gentleman charges me with being an ally of his colleague. I think that is out of order.

The Speaker overruled the point of order.

Mr. Ward suggested that if this were true it would do credit to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr Eldridge retorted that if such a point of order had been made in reference to the gentleman from New York, it would certainly have been sustained.

Mr Butler (in reply to the question, but by Mr Eldridge to Mr Stevenson) said that two members of the Convention had since gone to that bourne from which there was no return—sent there by the bullets of those men to whom Mississippi was to be turned over, if the argument of his colleague and of the gentlemen from Wisconsin are to prevail. The Constitution had been defeated under the influence of General Gillem; but one of General Grant's first acts was the removal of Gen. Gillem, because of his copperheadism, which covered everything wrong and bad. He warned the Republican members that if Mississippi and Georgia were not reconstructed with loyal legislatures the 15th amendment could not be passed, and they would lose half a dozen States,—every man on the other side of the house knew that well and laughed in his sleeve, as those Republicans whom they got to do their work knew right well what they were about. He knew them of old; he used to be one of them. They used the Whigs, in the olden days, as the monkey used the cat's-paw to get the chestnuts out of the fire. Referring to the remarks of Mr Farnsworth yesterday as to his taking up the cudgel for the black man, years ago, when men who were now Republicans, were acting with the slaveholders party, he said that some persons thought more of Judas than they did of Paul because Judas was the elder apostle of the two. He (Butler) would wait to give the vote to those white men of the South till it would be safe for all men to vote,—until it would be safe for every Union man in the South to sleep in his cabin, with the latch-string out,—then he would go with the gentleman (Farnsworth) for the white man, and not till then—so help him God, not till then.

The House proceeded to vote on Farnsworth's motion to postpone the bill till the first Monday in December next.

The bill was postponed—yeas 106, nays 62.

Mr Paine reported that Mr Simpson, who claims a seat from the 4th District of North Carolina, is not eligible.

Mr Maynard introduced a bill to increase the revenue from duties on imports, and to the equalization of exports and imports, being the bill prepared last session by the sub committee of the committee of ways and means. Referred.

Mr Cessna called up the election case of Covode and Foster, from the 21st District of Pennsylvania. Without disposing of the question the House adjourned.

HOULTON ELECTION. At the annual meeting in Houlton, for the choice of town officers, &c., on Monday, 29th ult., the following were elected:

Moderator—Eben Woodbury.
Clerk—Theodore Cary.
Selectmen—S. H. Hussey, Jefferson Cary, Lysander Putnam.
Treasurer—C. P. Tenney.
Collector—Wm. Donovan.
Agent—L. Powers.
S. S. Committee—C. M. Powers.

It was voted to raise $4000 for current expenses of the town, and $5000 for highways.

of [illegible] spring is the best time to test the merits and demerits of our sidewalks, and we hope they will receive attention.

LAST DAY OF THE FAIR. In a special notice will be found the announcement to continue the Fair another day. The success of the undertaking has proved more than the Committee of Arrangements had reason to expect. But still many elegant articles remain unsold, and new articles have been offered. The previous days have been so unsuitable to travel that comparatively few out of town people have been able to come in. This will give them an opportunity to contribute to this grand affair, and to witness the [illegible] display—for most of the articles will remain on exhibition. The arrangements for to-day will be as usual, and in the evening will be presented a tableau, the Children of the Home, with the Matron and Managers of the institution.

BUSINESS CHANGE. As will be seen by advertisement, the copartnership heretofore existing between Mr. S. S. Patten and Mr. Geo. S. Kimball is dissolved. Mr. Patten is to continue the dry goods business at the old stand.

THE CHILDREN'S FAIR—THIRD DAY. Yesterday was the third, and according to the original programme, the last day of the Fair, but from the crowds who filled the hall the entire day, and the unflagging interest manifested, a stranger would have supposed it just opened, and that our citizens were looking in upon it for the first time. Nothing which has ever come off in Bangor, not even the Sanitary Fair, has exceeded, even if it has equalled this in the way of being liberally patronized. Yesterday noon the treasury had received twenty-five hundred dollars as the partial result of the Fair, and the sum must have been swelled to considerably above three thousand dollars at night. The refectory was well patronized, and netted some three hundred dollars as the result of the day's sales. Such an attack upon the larder of course materially reduced the supplies, and as it has been decided, on account of the interest manifested to continue the Fair another day, and as no provision has been made for furnishing the edibles, it is requested that everybody from all the societies furnish such contributions for the table as they may be able to, do upon so short a notice. The principle articles needed are turkey and chicken, bread, cakes, milk (and plenty of it), and butter. Hot rolls in the afternoon would be very acceptable.

In our yesterday's notice of the articles contributed to the fancy tables, we should have stated, when speaking of the doll's house made by Master Jewett, that the furniture was mostly made by Master Edward Pearson; the remainder of it, with the elegant upholstering, was by the ladies of the Unitarian Society.

The entertainment for last evening was, as was previously announced, provided by the "Young Folks' Union" of the Universalist Society, a talented club who are always ready to lend a helping hand in every good work. The programme was an excellent one, and one particularly meritorious feature was that the performance commenced promptly at seven o'clock, and though the programme was quite lengthy it was all through at twenty minutes past nine, allowing the audience, among whom were many children, time to get home in good season. Of the performances themselves it is but simple justice and no flattery to say that they were, without exception, first rate. The amount of talent displayed was a matter of surprise to persons who had never before witnessed exhibitions of the club.

The performances commenced with a very pretty tableau, entitled the May Queen, in which little Kitty Ring, the charming Queen, introduced a prettily executed fancy dance.

This was followed by the song, "Who's that Tapping at the Garden Gate?"—charmingly sung by Miss Helen Jackman.

"The Country Aunt's Visit to the City" came next, and brought down the house with the capital "Aunt Peabody," by Miss Colcord. If the old lady had been there herself she could not have appeared more natural. Miss Colcord was called out and sang, in the true voice and spirit, the "Golden Rule, or Do unto Others as You would have Them Do to You." Mr. Ora Pearson sang the descriptive song, "The Ship on Fire," with good effect.

This was succeeded by the exquisitely performed Acting Tableau, entitled Guardian Angels. The tableau of the Dying Brigand, intervened between this and the closing performance, a farce, entitled an "Object of Interest," in which Mrs. Doe as Mrs Tre-then discharged 150 tons of iron, and on March 6th sailed again, and after a hard passage arrived at Winterport March 26th. The ship was built in 1864; length of keel 200 feet; breadth of beam 30 feet, and draws 18 feet of water when loaded. Her engines are of 98 horse power. She consumes 15 tons of coal per day, and carries twenty-three men all told. She averages in moderate weather 200 miles per day. She is now discharging at this port, and is the second iron ship ever in this river.

Agent—A. Milliken.
S. S. Committee—H. [illegible], S. Brown.

It was voted to raise $2000 for schools, $1500 for the poor, various expenses $1500, roads and bridges $2000.

BURLINGTON ELECTION. The following is a list of officers chosen in Burlington last Monday—

Moderator—Joseph Porter.
Clerk—James Page.
Selectmen—Jeremiah Page, Thomas W. Porter, John W. Hayden.

—The Pioneer says a live moose, caught in the northern part of Aroostook, passed through Houlton on Saturday, in charge of A. D. Watson of Bangor.

—The steamship Austrian, Capt. Wylie, (of the Montreal Ocean Steamship Company's line) arrived in Portland from Liverpool Wednesday at 1.20 A. M. She left Liverpool on the 18th inst. and Londonderry on the 19th. She brings 16 cabin and 448 steerage passengers. The steamship will sail from there Saturday for Liverpool, the Hibernian.

—In Oxford and Franklin counties there have been up to this time one hundred and forty four days of uninterrupted sleighing.

—The Norway correspondent of the Lewiston Journal says that on Monday the only child of Claudius and Margaret Tager, of N., aged 4½ years, was drowned. He left home between nine and ten o'clock A. M. with his sled, and as he did not return to dinner his mother supposed he had gone to his grandfather's, as he was frequently in the habit of doing. She gave no serious thought to his absence till the latter part of the afternoon, when she sent a neighbor in quest of him. As no one had seen him during the day, search was immediately made up and down the stream, and in a short time his body was found with the rope of his sled around his neck.

—The Springfield Republican says that Dr. Hamlin, a cousin of Senator Hamlin of Maine, is likely to be appointed interpreter (dragoman) to our legation to Constantinople. This is a just tribute paid to Dr. Hamlin's wide-spread efforts in behalf of education and civilization in the East.

—The Portland Press learns that on the Bath Railroad, about one mile below Brunswick, the heavy rain of Monday night caused a stream to break through a culvert, washing away some 60 feet of the embankment. The passengers on the morning train from Bath were obliged to get out and walk around the break. In the afternoon it was repaired so that the train passed over.

—Cincinnati is to be presented by one of her citizens with a beautiful fountain, costing $60,000.

—In the Friendly Island, where fifty years ago there was not one native Christian, but gross and unbroken darkness, the regular attendants on worship now exceed 30,000, and contributions to religious objects are over $15,000 a year. Two hundred and fifty day schools containing 10,000 pupils.

A LEGEND OF THE KENDUSKEAG.

They call us—and they [illegible] with truth who call us so—

A stern, far-seeing, unromantic race—the dwellers [illegible]

[illegible] Katahdin's pine-crown'd brow [illegible]

[illegible] in proud memories of [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the rough tide that [illegible]

[illegible] to the moon, its beacon light and guide—

Yet poor in ancient [illegible] of glen and [illegible]

Of wrinkled beldam—skilled [illegible]

On broomstick steed [illegible]

Dancing on the moonlit sward, to the sweet chime

Of wild-rung heather bells—[illegible]

[illegible] witching tongue [illegible]

By the chill and bracing air, that lends

Fresh vigor to the North man's frame,

And clears the cobwebs [illegible]

And yet, we have our legend—[illegible]

Of other days, when o'er the [illegible]

Rich with their wealth of golden corn,

And sweet-breathed clover bloom, [illegible]

[illegible]

Reared their leafy crests [illegible]

To the storm-king's might [illegible]

[illegible] their brawny limbs the nobler [illegible]

Of the soil—Nature's untutored [illegible]—

Whose dusky forms [illegible]

[illegible] the power of brain-directed toil

On the green banks of Androscoggin [illegible]

And where Penobscot, like a [illegible]

Of Heaven's own blue, [illegible]

Majestic to the sea, [illegible]

Their [illegible]—the ashes of a blotted race.

No monumental stone, or flower-wreathed cross,

No sainted tomb, with [illegible]

To curious eye, the history [illegible]

Within the sheltering [illegible]

A peasant and a king.

And yet, tradition [illegible]

With romance, [illegible]

And with her all-reviving [illegible]

To flow life these dry and withered bones.

There is a cliff, whose [illegible]

Looks down into Kenduskeag [illegible]

That laughs, reflecting back the [illegible]

That towers in stately majesty [illegible]

Stern and unyielding [illegible]

Yet stretching landward, [illegible]

Of sunny hillside, smiling [illegible]

Brightened by ever kindly [illegible]

[illegible] who [illegible] contact with the world

Shows but his sterner nature, rough and hard,

But at the hearthside [illegible]

And plays the boy again, [illegible]

There is a tale about this [illegible]

A tale of days gone by, of [illegible]

Passions that smoulder in the [illegible]

With tenfold vigor, [illegible]

Of social [illegible]

There lived—so runs the tale,—[illegible]

Proud scion of a brave and hardy stock,

A forest Montague, whose [illegible]

When swift departing to the [illegible]

Clasped, with limp fingers, [illegible]

And bade the youthful [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the honor of his [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

He should with trusty bow [illegible]

Seek out the covert of his people [illegible]

From which his own [illegible]

Back to his tribe the tokens of [illegible]

[illegible]

The youth obeyed his parting [illegible]

And when returning to his [illegible]

[illegible] bloody trophies dangle [illegible]

And now, stern warriors [illegible] plumed heads

And hoary minstrels rang his praise [illegible]

And maidens smiled, with shy [illegible]

Watching the envious glance [illegible]

But in his eyes were neither [illegible] joy

A settled gloom hung round him like a pall,

And weary hearted, sad, [illegible]

Impatient of the mirth [illegible]

For in his breast there lurks a hidden wound—

A sweet delicious smart, [illegible]

April.

O, sweet monopolist of light and shade;

Thou wayward Hebe of the varying year;

We hunger for thy wealth of smiles delayed,

And listen for thy songs and laughter clear.

Within thy hand, the lily's heart is waking;

Beneath thy flitting breath the grateful streams,

Up from the winter's desolateness breaking,

Murmur the same soft lays that [illegible] our youthful dreams.

The same soft lays—as when in life's glad morn,

We listened with a dreamy sense of bliss;

And knew not whence the hope within us born,

While bounding on to meet the summer's kiss!

Through drifting clouds thy radiant face appearing,

Thy graceful robes dispelling chill and gloom;

The joyous strains of thy wild music hearing—

We love thy sweet [illegible] month [illegible] bloom.

Then gather up thy garments [illegible]

And wreathe thy buds and blossoms [illegible]

The sad eye brighten [illegible]

And in thy lustre, [illegible]

Fairs, Facts, and Memories.

Three Fairs, including the present one, have been held for the benefit of the Bangor Orphan Asylum, [illegible] Home. In March 1836 the Hall of the Bangor House was the built [illegible] scene of the first Fair. If we remember aright, the booths covering the [illegible] were formed of evergreens, and [illegible] tastefully arranged. The citizens generally took an interest in it and, as it realized the net sum of $1200, it was looked upon as a very successful effort [illegible] larger than Bangor was at that time. The house, purchased with the funds, was at that time, a small single one, containing scanty accommodations for eight or ten children with their matron. The necessity for repairing and enlarging this building, at length became so obvious, that the managers, though destitute of funds, ventured to commence the work, and again trust to a Fair to supply the needful means. Accordingly in the winter of 1848, they held a Fair in the old City Hall, before that ancient and respectable building had been [illegible] and its Hall made the bright and [illegible] room it now is. Perhaps the most noticeable event connected with this [illegible] and Fair was the publication [illegible] of the "Voices from the Kenduskeag," a book, which whatever its literary merit certainly had a great local interest. Owing to some delay on the part of the printers, or binders in Boston, the volumes were not forthcoming as was promised, and fully expected, the day the Fair opened. For this reason the managers decided at the close of the first day's sale, to postpone further operations until the following week. On this second occasion, the books were present, and those of us who took part in the pleasant excitement of that evening, have a lively recollection of the [illegible] curiosity as to who wrote this and that article, of which the buyers caught glimpses as they hastily glanced at its pages; while jokes, compliments and criticisms, were bandied about in nearly equal measure. The book yielded to the Asylum a profit of more than $200, and if a large part of the edition had not been soon after destroyed by fire, there is no doubt the sum would have been considerably augmented, as copies were frequently called for, long after all that escaped destruction had been sold.

In one article, the "Vision of Bangor," written as is well known by one of our most prominent and honored citizens, occurs this passage: "As I passed [illegible] ward I was attracted by a beautiful arch at the entrance of a substantial, elegant and commodious building, bearing this inscription, 'The Bangor Female Orphan Asylum, founded in 18[illegible], and sustained by the benevolence of its citizens'—I looked with interest on the groups of healthy, happy and well-conditioned children, [illegible] Thanks to the munificence of one of Bangor's loveliest daughters, we shall not have to wait a hundred years for the fulfilment of the [illegible], so prophetic in many other points as well as this; already the "substantial, elegant, and commodious" building adjoins the side of Thomas' Hill, and it only remains that this third Fair for Orphan and destitute children, finally yield a sufficient sum to place in it "comfortable and substantial furniture," [illegible] our citizens to behold the Home filled with "groups of healthy, happy, and well conditioned children."

It is quite noticeable, that those ladies who once take up this charge heartily, by active participation in labor for its welfare, seldom leave it; unless called by ill health of themselves, or families,—consequently the Board of Managers is composed chiefly of the same individuals, year by year. It is [illegible] possible that such long association of several individuals for one object, should not have a marked effect on character. Many a warm debate has sprung up in that little managers' room, but never to our knowledge, has any hard feeling remained to mar future intercourse. Many friendships have there been formed, wholly outside the limits of [illegible] social external friendship that we are sure will not cease with this life. Already some most cherished ones have passed on. One there was preeminently [illegible] loved and honored, to whom reference has often been made in our records and reports. We well remember when her commanding figure and intelligent face first presented itself in the parlor of the Asylum. Though comparatively a stranger to most of us, she soon endeared herself to all. The recent loss of a young daughter, had especially called forth her sympathies towards motherless children, and their cause, once adopted, was never dismissed from her heart, until many years of efficient aid, she laid it down with her mortal life. Memory presents another petite figure and face all aglow with light of warm affections, and bright incisive intellect. Her never-failing fund of quaint humor was sure to bring sunshine, and send an electric charm to her presence. She went out from among us, to a temporary home, in a foreign land, from which she sent us pleasant words of greeting, accompanied by the substantial gift of $100. Sorrow and bereavement of no ordinary character, quickened the seeds of disease and we saw her face no more. Many tender reminiscences cluster also around some of the departed children. Little deformed Alice taught a lesson of sweet patience, to all who witnessed the protracted sufferings of her brief life.

But we must not linger over sad themes.

We have often heard it said, "the little managers' room is a good place for the study of human nature," and many amusing as well as instructive glimpses into the motives which rule human conduct, have been there afforded. Not only do the managers come to know more of themselves and of each other, but they think they have learned something of the [illegible] of the financial pulse outside.—They know who always give willingly and liberally, and who also give with equal [illegible]liness—excuses. This, however, they will all say, and say heartily, that never has the Asylum been in great want that its needs have not in some way been supplied by a generous public. Relief may come sometimes mysteriously. An unknown friend may wear a veil over the face while presenting $200 with the hand, but it comes. The remark has been so often made among the managers—"We never yet have appealed in vain to the people of Bangor"—that it has passed into a proverb.

We have full faith that Providence will smile on our fortunes in the future, and therefore we add we are sure that this third Fair will be a triumphant success. We need the money! We shall have it, says one, who speaks from more than twenty years' EXPERIENCE.

What nation is most prolific in poetry and fiction? Imagination.

What one the most brilliant? Illumination.

What the most persevering? Determination.

What the jolliest nation? Cachination.

The revolution in Cuba is by no means [illegible]catory.

The following characteristic anecdote of our late fellow-citizen, Dr. Holden, may interest some of our readers.

Before stamps were invented, and the postage to New York was twenty-five cents, the doctor received a letter from that city, postage unpaid, inquiring about the pecuniary responsibility of a neighbor. He replied, adding a P. S.—"It is customary for gentlemen, when writing to others on their own business, to prepay their postage, except when the letter is supposed to be for the benefit of the person written to; in which case, the same rule of politeness requires him to pay the postage on his reply. Presuming that [illegible] a gentleman, I am bound to suppose your letter was written for my benefit, though I do not exactly see how. I shall therefore pay the postage of this letter." This he did, and by return of mail received an apologetic note inclosing a dollar bill, with the remark that it would be sufficient to pay the two postages already paid, and also that of the present letter. On receipt of this the Dr. at once replied that he found himself possessed of an extra quarter which he knew not what to do with, and had therefore concluded to acknowledge the receipt of the money and pay the postage of the letter, and that would make the account square.

A friend of ours, being at the Natural History Rooms in Boston the other day, stood contemplating the skeleton of men and monkeys, which, for the sake of comparison, were arranged side by side. A stranger gentleman at his elbow looked at a human skeleton and then asked who the next one was. "That is a gorilla," said our friend. "A gorilla! Do you suppose the War Department [illegible]?"

One says to the other—"How is it that you are so slow to take a joke? I believe you could not take one if it was fired at you, out of the mouth of a cannon." With the utmost naivete the other replied—"Why, how could you fire a joke out of a cannon?"
